Stonefield Josephson's Nanette Lee Miller named Accounting Today's 10 Most Powerful Women"

January 5, 2010--Accounting Today has listed Stonefield Josephson Principal and Shareholder, Nanette Lee Miller as one of their "10 Most Powerful Women" in the "Where are Women Leaders," article, emphasizing the growing trend of women in high-level CPA positions.

This release directly coincides with Stonefield Josephson's own Women's Initiative Program, designed to facilitate and nurture women in the firm. Through mentorships, trainings and support, the Women's Initiative Program is the brainchild of Miller, Chairman of the Board for Stonefield Josephson, and several other high-ranking females within the firm. Both the Women's Initiative and the firm's green initiative (Fiscally Green--which strives to educate firm employees on sustainability tactics and advises outside businesses on tax incentive and clean technology strategies) add to the firm's diversity as it continues to develop and take on employees and locations.

"As our firm grows and evolves within a changing world," says Stonefield Josephson President Jeff Garrison, "our Women's Initiative and women like Nanette help lead the way." Miller, who became one of the youngest female CPA's in California at the age of 22, maintains her status as a pioneer and leader within the business arena as well as through community and social service work by functioning as a board member within several area non-profits.
